Dear John:

This short letter was written to express our sincere appreciation for your time, efforts and courtesy extended to us while we visited your campus last Friday.

All of us, most especially Mr. Kawakami, enjoyed every moment while we were at your university. Thank you very much for the tour, the innovative demonstration with your wife's beautiful voice and the lunch. We are sure Mr. Kawakami would remember the valuable time he spent with you for a long time to come.

Thanks again to you and all your associates at your department.

Very Sincerely Yours,

Jim Funada

Dear Jim

Thank you for your letter. We were indeed honored to have you visit Stanford. It was especially valued that Mr. Kawakami was able to see our facility and our planning of the research that we are pursuing. I hope that you and your colleagues will visit us again when you are next in the area.
