The accompanying letter from Hugh Lusted proposes what needs to be done to activate the Biomuse account. I certainly concur with Hugh's suggestion that, if feasible, he be put on some salary arrangement (though it needs to be minimal, considering the size of the account), since that's the only way I see that work will be done on the problem. I don't envision any student developing an interest in working on the problem unless and until it's moved to a more advanced stage.

Do you foresee any difficulties in implementing what Hugh has proposed here? When the funds are available, would you like a more formal outline of the proposed budget?

Thanks for your help in this.
