

The Student application is a software and mobile app that allows users to combine their university's learning management system (LMS), such as Canvas, with a preferred calendar service. The system combines information from each course in your LMS with personal events from your calendar to increase daily productivity by having all activities on one platform. Student helps students all around the world link their educational and personal systems to revolutionize efficiency.

Manifesto

As a student at Stanford University, I am constantly cross-checking my Canvas with my personal calendar to ensure I am on top of all of my daily activities. This lack of unity has created an everlasting sense of uncertainty, and often find myself feeling as if I am missing something. This feeling is what inspired me to design an app that takes all of my tasks and activities and combines them in one place. Like many of my peers, I am tired of wasting time, worrying about due dates, and missing something. Without forcing thousands of organizations and universities to transition to the same platform, Student would be an easy way to have all the information from your LMS and calendar in the same place.
