Why History?

MYSTORY was created on the belief that the authors of history should be everyday people. Inspired by the lack of agency most people have in influencing what is written about their history, MYSTORY offers a space where anyone can build community, search our database, and engage in discussion about historical events.

Accessibility

We believe that accessibility and agency is at the forefront of authorship.

Privacy

MYSTORY never collects user data. Instead of using the targeted advertising model, our site operates through voluntary contributions. Users are welcome to donate so we can continue making improvements to our site.

Humans in the Loop

- Content Curators ensure that information is presented in the most helpful way possible
- Users can search for keywords, report posts, and make suggestions that are reviewed by editors
- Reported posts are locked immediately so they do not cause harm, our team then reviews the content and takes appropriate action
- We encourage transparency by providing information about how our website works under the tab "More Information"
- Our dynamic design team reviews suggestions and makes appropriate improvements to the website
A commitment to dynamic design

Our commitment to dynamic design means that we will constantly be redesigning our website in honor of ensuring that our website can promote goodness at all times. Many of our improvements will be based on user suggestions from the 'Make a Suggestion' tab.

Because MYSTORY's focus is on every individual being able to share what they want how they want, our preliminary website will not filter information. However, we do recognize that we might come to a point where this becomes necessary. If we notice that disinformation or misinformation is being shared online, we will take appropriate measures to ensure that it ceases to be a problem.

The goal of MYSTORY is to leave as many options as possible open, but with this power comes great responsibility. We recognize that we cannot predict all issues we will have. Our dynamic design team will mitigate any issues and make sure we are offering the best experience possible to our users.
